

Come like Driving Wind, O God

(Psalm 68)

1 Come like driv - ing wind, O God, let your
2 Let your peo - ple shout for joy; let them
3 Or - phan's fa - ther, wid - ow's hope, grace from 4 When you led your peo - ple out, march - ing 5 Sing to God, all round the earth, God whose en - e - mies be smoke. Come like sear - ing cheer and chant your name, sing - ing of the heav - en for the earth, you bring home the through the wil - der - ness, earth was shak - ing free - dom has no bound, God who speaks for fire, O God, let your en - e - mies be wax.

path you take, rid - ing on the glo - ry clouds.
dis - pos - sessed; you set slaves and pris - oners free.
as you went, rain was pour - ing from the sky.
all to hear, God whose bless - ing is our life.

This unrhymed 21st-century paraphrase effectively communicates the urgency of Psalm 68 and its celebration of God's power, manifest both in destroying all that hinders God's purposes and in caring for those who have no other helper. Such a God deserves our thanks and praise.